Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

1. Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Regarding claim 2, the claim is not written in such language to clearly convey the bounds of the limitations of the claims. It appears that the claim sets forth that the table in the lock can be updated and edited. If this is not the interpretation of the claim, then further refinement of the language of this claim is required.

Claim Objections

2. Claims 3 and 4 are objected to because of the following informalities: there appears to be some typographical errors in these claims. Claim 3 it appears that the term "a data" in line 1 should be "the data" since the limitation which follows appears to be directed to the data that was already introduced. Claim 4, it appears that the term "lots certified" should be changed to be "lots of certified." Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2635

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Henderson (6842105) and Tischendorf (5933086).

Tischendorf teaches a key-lock system that includes transmitters and receivers at the key and the lock. The communication between the key and the lock use frequency hopping spread spectrum and include a mode where the lock's list of authorized keys can be modified, col. 21 lines 45+. Upon receipt of a key code, the lock compares the key code to the list of authorized key codes and authorizes unlocking of the lock if the key code is on the list.

In an analogous art, Henderson teaches a key-lock system that includes transmitters and receivers at the key and the lock. The Henderson system operates such that both the key and the lock maintain lists of codes that can be edited and updated, figures 13 and 14. The key and lock each maintain a log of activity to pass on to the central controller for analysis. The communication between the key or the lock and the central controller (external device) use data lines to convey inputs and outputs to and from the central controller to and from the lock or key.

The claims set forth D-A converting and A-D converting. The examiner interprets the references as inherently requiring such elements since the digital data in the references is modulated (D-A) and then demodulated at the receiver (A-D) to communicate the baseband digital data.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Brian A. Zimmerman whose telephone number is 571-272-3059. The examiner can normally be reached on 7 am to 4 pm E.S.T.
